

EDITORIAL

I am once again impressed at the variety and quality of submissions to our journal: Entropy, Distant Intention, Nutritional Testing, and Scopesthesia – to mention only the research articles! (This is your chance to find out what “scopesthesia” means.) In addition, we have two essays (for one of which I am the guilty party), two contributions to our new Historical Perspective section (courtesy of Carlos Alvarado), three Letters to the Editor, and our usual very enjoyable collection of Book Reviews (courtesy of David Moncrief).

This Editorial is my swan song as Interim Editor In Chief of the journal. I am happy to report that Stephen Braude has been persuaded to assume the position of EIC effective January 1. We are very fortunate that Steve is willing to take on this assignment, and I congratulate our President, Garret Moddel, on his selection and powers of persuasion.

In addition to Carlos and David, I have been most fortunate to have a varied, able, and conscientious stable of Associate Editors: Stephen Braude, Courtney Brown, York Dobyns, Bernard Haisch, John Ives, Roger Nelson, Dean Radin, and Mark Rodeghier. I extend my heartfelt thanks to you all.

The Publications Committee [Henry Bauer, Bob Jahn (chair), and Garret Moddel] has proved to be another great asset. I have found it most helpful to be able to discuss policy issues with them. It has also been helpful – fortunately, on rare occasions - to be able to hand them a hot potato when an author was unhappy with an editorial decision, and wished to lodge an appeal with a higher authority. Thank you, Henry, Bob, and Garret.

Finally, I wish to acknowledge the highly professional and invariably good-humored support of the Allen Press staff – especially Kristen Jarboe and Joy Richmond (the Managing Editor team). Thank you, Kristen and Joy.

Avete atque valetē – and Welcome to Volume 22, Issue 4.
